PREFACE

THE first edition of this work appeared in 1878, under the title of 'Rome's Recruits.' During the thirty-two years that have elapsed since that mere list was printed, nine other editions have been published, for all of which I have been entirely responsible.

The welcome which this book has received in the earlier editions and the hundreds of letters which have reached me have testified to the fact that I have supplied a need, and in so doing have justified my labours.

The task of preparing a new edition, which should include the names of the many recent converts and at the same time give that fuller information necessary in a book of reference, was commenced some years ago. The collection of names and details has been no light undertaking but encouragement and help have been forthcoming on every side. My best thanks are due to those who have, with the greatest kindness, replied to my enquiries and to those also who have written to assure me of their interest in the book and to witness to the good its publication has done.

It is a happy coincidence, and I hope a happy omen that I have brought my work to completion in this the Golden Jubilee year of the Restoration of the Catholic Hierarchy in our country.

The publication of such a list speaks eloquently for the vitality of the Church. It may be regarded as a challenge by some, but nothing is further from the wish of the author. To all fair-minded men the movement towards the Church cannot fail to be of great interest. With the bigot the author has no concern except to remind him that in yielding allegiance to the Old Faith the convert becomes no less loyal to his native country. His Gracious Majesty King George V has not in the thousands enumerated in these pages lost a single subject; rather has he gained, for loyalty like all the virtues only grows stronger in the fuller life.

No pains have been spared to secure accuracy in the information given in this list, which does not claim to be official and which is in no way, 'a numbering of the people' but a record of a spiritual change among the intellectual classes of these Islands. The names have been supplied to me by the converts themselves, by their friends, or have been culled from the public press. In this connection the columns of The Tablet have provided me with much material and my sincerest acknowledgements are due to the editor and publisher of that well known paper. The pages of those most interesting works The Bibliographical Dictionary of English Catholics and The Catholic Who's Who have enabled me to correct several errors in previous editions of my volume. I am happy in the belief that Mr Joseph Gillow and Sir Francis Burnand will accept this public expression of my gratitude. I am also very appreciative of the courtesy extended to me by several ladies and gentlemen (daughters or sons of converts) for adding to, or correcting their family biographies; as well as for presenting me with copies of the 'Lives' or 'Memoirs' of their distinguished parents. I cannot deny myself the pleasure of thanking quite a hundred Anglican clergymen who have been so good as to answer all my queries.

If error has crept in, it has been by some inadvertence and for any such, if such there be, I would apologise most humbly. Nothing would pain me more than that the insertion of any name should give pain to a single person.

It will be found by a cursory inspection of the list that there is hardly an English noble family that has not given one or more of its members to the Roman Catholic Church;

the intercourse thus opened between the two formerly uncommunicating camps has resulted in a feeling of mutual good-will and friendliness which the greatest intellects and the largest hearts on each side cordially encourage.

As many of my correspondents have addressed me as though I were in Holy Orders, I think it my duty to state that I am not a priest nor am I a member of any Religious Order.

In conclusion I would add, that I shall be happy to receive corrections and new biographies for future editions.

W. GORDON GORMAN.

THE ANCIENT CHURCH OF ROME

*As rises Teneriffe above
The restless ocean's moan,
So looms above earth's chance and change
The ancient Church of Rome.
Majestic 'gainst the sunset sky
The Titan mountain stands,
Frowning while ocean-giants die
Upon its foaming strands.
So bold against the lurid past,
Yet stands the Church of Rome,
Unchanged when all is changing fast—
The storm-tossed pilgrim's home.
O'erwhelmed by the barbarian hosts
The Eternal City fell,
But laid on her rude conquerors
The magic of her spell.
Thus facing countless future years,
And ages yet unborn,
Rome rises o'er all haunting fears,
And dreads no coming storm.*
